HILL SECURITIES LED BREAK

Feature of Money Market Was the Demand for Commercial Paper.

NEW YORK, January 22.—There was a further decline in the activity of stocks to-day, the total dealings bearing no larger proportion to those of yesterday than did those of yesterday to the active market of Monday. Professional operations again seemed to make up practically all of the dealings. Also these operations were followed without any show of firm gonvictions, and constant shifting by traders kept values in an unstable condition that made the market closely resemble that of the day before. The early decline in sympathy with the break in the Hill stocks elicited supporting orders of the kind that have made the bears grow timid and which have given color to suppositions that an accumulation of stocks has been going on with a descre to avoid violent price-fluctuations. The movement in the Hill stocks was a direct response to the judical upholding of the contention of the Minnesota State authorities that consent of the State Railroad Commission was required for the proposed issue of new Great Northern stock. The opinion in the stock market inclined to the view that a material obstacle had been encountered in the way of the proposed plan for raising new capital. The companion movement in Northern Pacific represented the view that its proposed stock increase might be opposed by similar measures, while the marked contrast in the upward movement of St. Paul was caused by the speculative assumption that the quick manner of completing its stock issue had forestalled such probable hindrance.

A feature of the money market is the improved demand that has sprung up for commercial paper, which has resulted in a reduction in rates to 5 3-4 per cent for prime grades. Discounts in Berlin receded to-day. Net gains predominate to-day where declines were the rule at the preceding close.

DANVILLE TOBACCO MARKET.

CReported by Dibrell Bros.)

Danyille, Va., January 23, 1997.

We have had soft weather and full breaks again this week. The farmers continue to rush their tokacco to market, and at the present rate of selling it there will be left very little of the crop in the country. There has been very little improvement in quality or condition this week. Much of it shows the effect of the continued wet weather, since the crop was cured in barn mould, and it is difficult to buy any line of tokacco that is absolutely free of the continued wet weather, since the crop was cured in barn mould, and it is difficult to buy any line of tokacco that is absolutely free of it. However, it is generally thought, and some of the best manufacturers reject, that this will not affect the usefulness of them arm a sager senselly are the last of the continued and the continued and the continued to the holidays. Wrappers and clagarel market in that force. Wrappers and clagarel market in the holidays. Wrappers have until now been relatively cheaper than other grades, expectally considering the small proportion of them, in the crop and the quality and the small atocks carried over.

condition this is considered a remarkably good said from the farmers' standpoint.

We have heard of several trades in round lots going on in a quiet way, and the independent that have run up into more than a thousand hogshead each since the holdsays. But these things are usually kept very quiet for obvious reasons, and the roul facts are hard to get at. But undoubtedly there is much trading manufacturers are taking their share. We look for heavy receipts again next week.

COTTON—The market displayed a better undertone this morning, and business was of more liberal proportions, the built element being encouraged by good cables and some buying orders from me other side. The only thing to account for the more healthy appearance of the market was the possibility of a builtish sinners' report late in the day and in anticipation of which there was some covering of shorts and a small amount of long buying, the result of which was some seven points advance before the ginners figures appeared, beavy current receipts and forecasts for heavy receipts to morrow, the state of the second of t
